A hearty thanks to those of you who have volunteered for committee positions for 1994. Each committee was sent a charge to be completed during the year and I have asked many of them to report to you, the membership, in the ORALL Newsletter. The AALL Arrangements Committee is to create a bulletin of information on the annual meeting of AALL, so that those of us who are going can have some kind of basis by which to make plans for our trip AND provide those of us who aren't members (or who are wavering as to whether to go) some reasons to consider making the trip this year. I have asked Bylaws and Guidelines to consider whether awards should once again be a part of our Bylaws. Other committees have been given tasks which complement the charges as printed in the ORALL Handbook. The list of committee assignments is located elsewhere in this issue.

Two other committees are in the works: A Special Committee on the INTERNET, which will be charged with determining how the INTERNET can be made accessible by all ORALL member law libraries.

Randy Wilcox from Case Western Reserve University Law Library is our new INTERNET Coordinator with AALL. Randy will be on that committee. In addition, a Special Committee to Create an ORALL Display at AALL will be charged with setting up a table of ORALL materials in the exhibit hall at the AALL Annual Meeting. If you would like to be a member of these and/or other committees, please send me a letter with your request and I will try to accommodate you.

Speaking of the AALL Annual Meeting, I want to encourage you to become active in our national organization. Money and time are tight; yet all of us need professional rejuvenation. For those of you who haven't had the experience of a national convention, I suggest you consider applying for a grant to go to Seattle. The guidelines and application form are located in the AALL Newsletter. If you don't subscribe or belong to AALL, call one of your academic colleagues. If this year seems like a bit of a stretch, consider applying for next year in Pittsburgh. It will be good experience for when you are asked to help out in Indianapolis in 1996.

As for those of you aren’t new to AALL, I think the annual meeting experience is invaluable, not only for the programs but for things like experiencing the exhibit hall, where vendors will take the time to show you the newest CD-ROM or just talk about the wonderful sights to see. You will also make new friends, with whom you might go to a reception and then use as contacts for a problem facing you at your work. The Northwest is beautiful and the programs are always thought-provoking, whether directly relevant or merely enlightening. The AALL Annual Meeting is a wonderful experience and makes the money and time well-spent.

While we’re on the topic of meetings, the plans for our annual meeting in Indianapolis are in good hands. Jo Ann Fisher and Trudy Timovich are working on making 1994 an exciting time for us and are laying the groundwork for our chapter sponsorship of the 1996 AALL Annual Meeting. All of us should learn from this experience so that 1996 goes smoothly and makes us proud to be hosting the national conference.

To build on the idea that national and regional meetings are important for our professional and personal growth, there is talk that the next super-regional meeting will be held in 1996, somewhere in the Northeast. Remember, the next two national meetings are within driving distance for most of our members, so maybe travel money can stretch a little farther the next few years. We haven’t been formally invited to participate in the super-regional but it will be considered by the Executive Board at its next meeting.

Each year the Executive Board has a special meeting between the annual meeting and the AALL Annual Meeting. It is a time for the Board to assess where the organization is going and to make plans for the year. One of the things we will be discussing is an officer’s handbook, a document which will be used by those who are elected to officer’s positions and by those who are considering running for office. We hope it will provide a concise statement of the duties and responsibilities of each officer and executive board member, as in the ORALL Handbook, while at the same time giving people a narrative of what it means to be an elected officer of this organization.

Despite the work of being an officer, every time I dig into the work of ORALL I am glad to be a part of it! We have an active participation from the various types of law libraries and a group of talented leaders at the committee level. We can accomplish much when we work together to reach manageable goals. I appreciate the dedication of our membership. Happy Spring from Toledo!

Fond Farewell

February 1 Brenda Kelley, Lucas County (Toledo), began her new duties as Pima County (Arizona) Law Librarian at Tucson. Brenda has been a long-time member of ORALL, having served as Secretary, Treasurer and President. Although her list of laurels is extensive, most of us will miss her friendliness, willingness to help, her bubbly "y'all" at ORALL meetings, and her sincere desire to contribute to others’ law librarianship.

Brenda states that the Pima County collection is somewhat smaller than that of Lucas County, but it is spread out between 20 to 30 judges' offices. Her first chore will be to get to know the collection, and WHERE it is located. She states that she will also be serving a greater public population, many of whom are of Spanish descent, thereby requiring Brenda to polish up on her Spanish language skills.

Those of us who know Brenda and love her are happy for her move. Her roots to the West have been calling for some time. We knew it was inevitable that she would be moving on. Sincere best wishes from ORALL to Brenda and we will be planning to visit with her again at AALL meetings. The next one is Seattle, ‘y'all’!

1) Revised volumes of Ohio Jur Criminal Law. Lawyers-Cooperative is in the process of revising the Criminal Law volumes of Ohio Jurisprudence, 3d. The revised volumes do not indicate on the outside that they are any different than the older volumes they are replacing. In order to minimize confusion to your patrons, you may want to include an explanation in the revised volumes or at least be aware of the confusion that is very likely to result.

2) United Nations Gopher. If you have access to the Internet, check out the United Nations Gopher. It contains resolutions from the Economic and Social Council, the General Assembly, and the Security Council. The U.N. Gopher also contains press releases issued by the U.N. on topics such as disarmament, the environment, world health issues, and human rights. The U.N. Gopher allows easy access to these hard-to-find U.N. documents. It is not a source of all U.N. publications, but it provides directory information to assist you in obtaining materials not in the Gopher database.

3) Health Security Plan. How many online places can you find copies of and information on the President’s Health Security bill? Some of the places where this information can be found are:

The longest list of sources I found was through doing a Veronica search in “gopherspace” through the University of Cologne. That resulted in 12 screens of listings of sources on the Health Security Act (there were many duplicates). Sophisticated Internet searchers are probably appalled at this imprecise way of collecting information on the Internet; however, novices and those of us who know just enough to be dangerous, may find this dragnet approach useful.

Another source is through the CPL Electronic Library. Choose #8 Government and Law, from the opening menu, then on page 2 of the “Government and Law” menu, choose #23 “National Health Reform Plan.”

LEXIS. For information about health reform, check the Health file in the Legis Library.

WESTLAW. Information about the President’s Health Security proposal can be found in the BNA Health Care Daily (HCD) and Health News Daily (HND) databases.

4) Sources of Bill status information, Federal and Ohio. Getting back to more familiar turf, if you need to find out the status of a Federal or Ohio bill, there are several sources you can check. Print sources include CCH’s Congressional Index, and CQ’s Congressional Weekly. Online try the LEGIS Library on LEXIS and go into the BLTRCK file for information on the status of currently pending Federal bills or OHTRCK for Ohio bills. On WESTLAW the Federal bill tracking database is US-BILLTRK and the Ohio bill tracking database is OH-BILLTRK. If all else fails, you can call the Federal bill status line at (202) 225-1772 or the Ohio bill status number (800) 282-0253.

5) Jump feature in Legal Resource Index on WESTLAW. A handy feature of the Legal Resource Index on WESTLAW combines the comprehensiveness of a Legal Resource Index search with the convenience of full text law reviews online. If the full text of an LRI indexed article is also in the WESTLAW database, then there will be a jump marker (>) next to the cite field and you can with a hypertext right to the full text of the article.

6) Regional newspapers on WESTLAW. Newspaper articles can help you find information on lawsuits or legal trends that have not found their way into the appellate reporting system. You can also find biographical information on people or organizations in a particular geographic area. If you need some information on pending legislation, a local newspaper article can be very helpful. The Ohio newspapers available on WESTLAW include the Akron Beacon-Journal (AKRON-B), Cincinnati/Kentucky Post (KYCIN-POST), Columbus Dispatch (COL-DISP), Dayton Daily News (DNLA), and the Plain Dealer (CPD). You can search all of the Ohio newspapers in the group database PAPERSOH.

NEW SIS ON AUTOMATION

Mahnaz Mashfegh, Acquisitions/Serials Librarian, and Terence Rose, Reference Librarian, both at Indiana University Law Library, submitted the following proposal for the creation of an ORALL SIS on Automation.

PROPOSAL FOR ORALL SPECIAL INTEREST SECTION ON AUTOMATION

A. Why is there a need for a SIS on automation?

1. Law Librarianship has been in the forefront of automation and having an ORALL SIS on this subject allows the membership to stay current on automation issues.

2. Most institutions within ORALL have some form of automation.

3. There is a formal/informal need within the organization to address these issues.

4. Most libraries in ORALL use OCLC, RLIN, LEXIS and WESTLAW.

5. Automation is changing the way law librarians are doing their work.

B. What are the objectives of the new SIS?

1. Provide a forum for discussion of these issues on a local, state, and regional level.

2. Track new developments and their applications to law librarianship.

3. Serve as a liaison between AALL Automation and Scientific Development and Online Bibliographic Services Special Interest Sections.

4. Serve as a liaison between the bibliographic utilities, vendors and ORALL.

C. What are some duties that the new SIS could perform?

1. Develop programs for ORALL and AALL Annual Meeting.

2. Create a possible newsletter or special section in ORALL Newsletter that deals specifically with automation.

3. Serve as a sounding board for problems with vendors.

D. The New Section could have subcommittees on different automation topics.

1. A subcommittee on Local Systems
2. A subcommittee on OCLC
3. A subcommittee on RLIN
4. A subcommittee on Microcomputing
5. A subcommittee on LEXIS and WESTLAW.

The creation of the SIS on Automation was approved at the Fall 1993 business meeting.

Ohio Counties Sig Meeting

CD-ROM technology is the word of the day, and it is the subject of the Ohio Counties meeting scheduled May 19th at the Stouffer Hotel in Cleveland. The vote was overwhelming at the October meeting as to what topic content should be for the forthcoming meeting. The program will begin with an overview, or CD-ROM 101, to be followed by discussions by various librarians of their needs and usage of CD-ROM technology. The program will end with presentations by representatives from Anderson Publishing as well as Banks/Baldwin Publishing. All County librarians are urged to attend, because it is anticipated that many of our questions will be addressed, regardless of the size of the library. For further information, contact Rose Brown, Defiance County Law Library, 510 Court Street, Defiance, OH 43512 (419) 782-1186. Look for program details in the mail soon.
Since November, the Private Law Libraries SIG has been planning its first spring educational Institute. We are excited about this additional opportunity to share ideas with colleagues and hopefully solve some of life's little problems along the way.

The Institute will be held on Friday, April 22, right at the end of National Library Week and, hopefully, before the influx of the "dreaded" summer clerks. (I think this could qualify as an event for the National Legal Research Teach-In, sponsored by the AALL Research Institute Caucus)

CD-ROM will be the featured topic at the Institute. All of us, unless we've been buried in the stacks too long, have heard of CD-ROM in one way or another. Yet many of us still don't have it and, in some cases, can't seem to persuade our firms to take that intellectual leap of faith ("spend the money"). Meanwhile, some of us have jumped in with both feet and have networked CD-ROMs all over our offices.

Consequently, because the spectrum is so wide, we have decided that the best approach would be a holistic one (at least as holistic as one day will allow). We will take the participants through the decision processes—what CD-ROM is and why we should (or should not) get it, which products to get, how to configure them to maximize use, and finally, how to train users so they can get the most out of the firm's investment. There should be something there for everyone, no matter how complex your current setup is.

The format will be a mix of lecture, large-group participation, and individual conversation. Vendors will be on hand to answer questions about their products (they have been warned that the focus of this is to provide information more than to make sales); "expert" users will be available to help ease the anxiety of any novices.

We will be meeting on Friday, April 22, in Columbus at the Harley Hotel. It's right off I-71 at Route 161 (Dublin-Granville Road)—adjacent to the French Market and the Continent. Since the Institute will last only one day, you will have plenty of time to get home or, if you want, you can spend the weekend in Columbus. A block of rooms at reduced rates will be available for both Thursday and Friday nights—should you want to come in early, or stay longer.

A mailing will be going out in early March to all private law librarians. If you do not receive a registration packet by the middle of the month and would like to attend, please feel free to contact me. I will see that you get the pertinent information.

We're looking forward to the Institute. Susan Hersch and Sue Schaefer have worked very hard putting this together—we hope to see you there!!

ORALL Nominations

The Nominations Committee of ORALL worked very hard this year to put together a slate which would balance the composition of the Executive Board by geographical location and type of library. Believing strongly in the democratic process and pursuant to the constitution and the bylaws of ORALL, the Nominations Committee has selected the following members as candidates for office:

Vice President/President-Elect ............ Paul Mitchell
Secretary ................................. Irene Milan
Executive Board Member .................. Susan Hersch
........................................... Judy Rodgers

According to ORALL bylaw XI, Sec. 1(c), "Additional nominations may be made upon the written petition of five active voting members in good standing submitted to the Secretary no later than May 1st of the year. Such nominations by petition must be accompanied by the written acceptance of the nominee."

An official ballot will be prepared and mailed to each member by May 15. Please follow the instructions that will be included and return your ballot by June 15. The candidates receiving the largest number of votes shall be declared elected, and the results will be announced at the Annual Meeting.

OUTSOURCING: HOPE OF THE FUTURE OR THE BUZZWORD OF THE MOMENT

Last December, Wright State University announced it had conducted an agreement with OCLC to supply all of the cataloging for the University’s libraries with an attendant cost savings of $200,000 to $250,000 per year. The university is also taking bids for a vendor to handle authority control. All of the savings will remain in the library budget for new acquisitions.

The trend toward outsourcing (using third-party vendors to perform operations off-site) has become popular in most industries during the past decade, but WSU is the first major academic library to attempt to outsource a major portion of its operation. Law firms, in contrast, are accustomed to outsourcing everything from food service to records management, and some firm libraries already rely on third-party services to provide printed catalog cards of MARC records.

Certainly, any academic law library director would entertain the idea of outsourcing technical services in order to get something like the savings noted above into the acquisitions budget. This decision may well reflect the notion that, somehow, technological change should result in a decline in people and resources devoted to technical services. This view is reflected by Brian Alley in the November 1993 issue of Technicalities where he opined:

During the planning stages of the Ohio College Library Center, many of us were contemplating a day when cataloging departments would be downsized dramatically. But while we were planning, so were the catalogers. In the end, they managed to hold on to their trade secrets and magical powers and simply shift them into the electronic area.

It seems more than probable that some measure of this "cataloger bashing" (a term I’m attempting to get into the next ALA Glossary) is coloring what is ostensibly an objective management decision on outsourcing library operations. It is odd that some library managers consider cataloging a realm of secrets and magical powers, yet are able to determine it is the prime candidate for cutting or outsourcing.

Some functions can probably be outsourced successfully to OCLC or other vendors, while other functions which are tied to meeting the needs of one institution’s OPAC may need to remain in-house. Will the copy catalogers at OCLC look at older editions of Prosser on Torts to see where you classified them and whether the headings applied?

Who will close open entries which have ceased or been canceled? Who will create added entries or authority reference screens vociferously demanded by public service librarians? Who will be responsible for keeping up on all the publisher changes swamping the legal world right now? These issues are further complicated by the added time pressure of automation. Because of the ability to alter this data quickly and accurately, technical service employees are expected to use the full potential of every system feature. While these jobs could be switched to areas such as pre-order searching or database maintenance, a change in nomenclature or organization will have little impact on the actual amount of work to be done.

Outsourcing also alters the nature of communication in the library. The vendor and its employees may well entertain views of many problems that are quite different than the views of the contracting library. The formal and informal tools of persuasion and discipline exercised by managers will not be available when dealing with OCLC or Blackwell North America.

The case in favor of outsourcing some operations will grow as resource sharing has the effect of standardizing library operations. Soon the implementation of the Z.39.50 standards will enable a remote user to access another OPAC using the same commands as his campus OPAC. Library users will become increasingly impatient with the quirks and eccentricities of individual library catalogs and practices (e.g., the same title cataloged with different headings and classifications at different libraries). For the first time, the technology exists to achieve a far higher level of standardization. This would, in turn, allow large vendors to supply sets of standard data for new titles to many libraries which could immediately plug the data into an OPAC without the need to massage it to fit old practices.

In closing, it is only fitting to note that one of the most studied industrial plants in the world is GM’s Saturn plant where about 90% of each car is fabricated from scratch under one roof. Consequently, how long can it be before forward-looking library leaders start singing the praises of insourcing?

Roundtable for Newer Academic Law Librarians

Has your environment changed lately? New job, new career, new...well, it's always something out there. The Seattle Annual Meeting theme is Changing Environments. Come and discuss your environment with like-minded colleagues at the Roundtable for Newer Academic Law Librarians sponsored by the Academic Law Libraries Section.

Who is a "newer" academic law librarian? Librarians who are in non-supervisory academic library positions having five years or less professional experience are "new" and welcome at the Roundtable. Speakers will discuss issues relevant to newer academics and time will be allotted for group discussion. Last year's Roundtable was a great success--while newer academics are encouraged to attend in Seattle, we welcome any member's input in planning the Roundtable. It's a fun way to get to know people and become involved in AALL.

For further information, please contact either Pam Deemer, Emory University Law Library, Gambrell Hall, Atlanta GA 30322-2780 (phone: 404/727-0850, e-mail libped@emoryal1.cc.emory.edu) or Jane Underwood, Capital University Law School, 665 S. High Street, Columbus OH 43215 (phone: 614/445-8836, e-mail junderwo@mcs.capital.edu).

ORALL "MATCHMAKING"

The ORALL AALL Arrangements Committee is organizing a room "matchmaking" service for the 9-14 July 1994 AALL Annual Meeting in Seattle, Washington. Watch your mail for further details.

"Matchmaker" coordinator will be Laura Ray, MA, MLS Media/Reference Librarian, Cleveland-Marshall College of Law Library (216 687-6880, FAX 216 687-6881 laurer@jaslan.csuohio.edu).

NATIONAL LIBRARY SURVEY WEEK

The American Library Association is encouraging libraries of all types to distribute an eight-question survey form to patrons for a minimum of 12 hours during Library Week, April 17-23, 1994. The purpose of the survey is to provide for the first time a national "snapshot" of library customer satisfaction. The responses will be used to document the degree of such satisfaction with the nation's libraries, learn how libraries can better serve their customers, and to help patrons know that libraries care what they think.

A camera-ready survey, in a simple "check out" format, is available from ALA, along with guidelines for administering the survey. Libraries are encouraged to customize the survey by adding their name or logo, or ask additional questions. Estimated time to complete the survey is three minutes. Libraries will be asked to report their results to ALA by May 15. All responses will be confidential and used solely for the purpose of compiling a national picture of library customer satisfaction that can then become a tool for promoting library use and support.

For more information and a copy of the camera-ready survey, contact: ALA Public Information Office, 50 E. Huron St., Chicago, IL 60611, (800) 545-2433, ext 5044 or 5041.

RICS WANTS YOU!... For the Second Annual Legal Research Teach-In

Following on the heels of a hugely successful inaugural Teach-In during the 1993 National Library Week, AALL’s Research Instruction Caucus (RIC) is already hard at work organizing what promises to be an even bigger and better Legal Research Teach-In II during National Library Week, April 17-23, 1994. Designed to improve the research skills of library patrons, it also offers a wonderful public relations opportunity for law librarians to demonstrate their skills as teachers as well as promoting their role of information providers.

RIC needs the participation of as many law librarians as possible to make Legal Research Teach-In II a success. (Translation: RIC NEEDS YOU!] You can take part in two ways.

First, RIC needs to add to the collection of "research instruction kits" compiled for the 1993 celebration. These kits, focusing on various subject areas, are made available upon request to libraries participating in the Teach-In. That way, no one needs reinvent the wheel to be involved—big staff or one-person library, everyone can be a Teach-In player. BUT YOUR CONTRIBUTIONS ARE NEEDED TO MAKE IT WORK! Pathfinders, research guides, charts, posters, puzzles—any creative works that you are willing to share are welcome. RIC organizers are especially interested in building new kits on tax, labor, environmental, intellectual property, and international law research. These materials will be aimed at diverse audiences including students, lawyers, paralegals, and secretaries, so just about anything will do.

The other way you can participate is by making a commitment now that your library will conduct an event of some sort involving legal research instruction during National Library Week. Once you have committed to action, the doing will sort of fall into place. But if you do find yourself stuck for ideas, RIC will be there to assist with practical suggestions, sample instruction kits, and lots of promotional materials. In addition, you can mine the following article for a wealth of suggestions: K. Brunner and K. McCarthy, 1993 Teach-In Events, 2 PERSPECTIVES: TEACHING LEGAL RESEARCH AND WRITING 13-17 (Fall 1993). The P.R. Potpourri column in the December 1993 issue of the AALL Newsletter also focuses on the many ways in which the 1993 National Library Week was celebrated by law librarians.

So here is your new "TO DO" list:

(1) Send all contributions for new research kits as soon as possible to:

Karen B. Brunner, Library Manager
Piker, Danzlig, Scherer, Hyland & Perretti
Headquarters Plaza
One Speedwell Avenue
Post Office Box 1981
Morristown, NJ 07962-0800
(201) 538-0800 x 480
FAX: (201) 538-1984

(2) Immediately begin planning your Legal Research Teach-In II activity to coincide with National Library Week, April 17-23, 1994. For assistance from RIC, contact Karen Brunner. For assistance from AALL on National Library Week generally, contact Frank Houdek, AALL Public Relations Coordinator, Southern Illinois University School of Law, Carbondale, IL 62901, (618) 453-8788, FAX (618) 453-8728.
